PROFILE

Dr. Mohd Hafizul Afifi bin Abdullah is an Assistant Professor at Universiti Tunku Abdul Rahman (UTAR), Malaysia. He holds a Ph.D. in Information Technology from Universiti Teknologi PETRONAS and an M.Info.Tech. and B.Sc. in Computer Science from Universiti Tun Hussein Onn Malaysia. Over nearly ten years in higher education, he has developed a robust pedagogical philosophy centred on hands-on, industry-aligned learning, integrating live virtual labs and continuous assessment. This bridges the gap between theoretical computer science and its practical application, and sustains high engagement among his students. His research focuses on deep learning for biomedical applications, particularly natural language processing for extracting information from biomedical text and medical image analysis. His track record includes publications in reputable Q1/Q2 journals, a keynote on generative AI (IICT'26), and a UTAR Research Fund grant on which he serves as Principal Investigator. He also reviews for international conferences and for journals such as Neural Networks and Knowledge-Based Systems.
